

CROIX

IN THE VINEYARD

Our farming experience partners perfectly with our Sonoma County growers, the Dutton family. Together, we have selected vineyard locations that induce perfection in the glass: a temperate climate provides warm days and cool nights, porous alluvial and hillside soils with balanced nutrient deposits, and ample degree days to promote prolonged hang time for optimal maturation.

: WATER LESS :

Dry farming, or as close to dry farming as environmentally possible, promotes a natural path to vine regulation and vigor control for optimal fruit yields.

: COVER IT UP & COMMIT NO EVIL :

Cover crops, such as oats, vetch and winter peas planted alongside seasonal mustard, provide organic matter and soil structure that promote root growth. They also provide a vibrant habitat for beneficial insects and birds that in turn create biological control against vine pests. No weed is evil and herbicide use of any kind is strictly prohibited.

: USE A SLOW HAND :

Tending the vines and harvesting by hand is a long standing family tradition and integral to growing fruit of the highest quality.
